MORE ABOUT THE LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Gettysburg National Park Commission in Annual Report to the War Department Speaks Favorably of the Plan.

That the Lincoln Memorial Way from Washington to Gettysburg is not a dead project is shown in the annual report of the Gettysburg National Park Commission. An Associated Press dispatch from Washington gives the following summary of the report:

The number of visitors to the Gettysburg National Park during the fiscal year 1905 was greatly in excess of that of previous years. This is shown by the annual report of the park commission made public today.

John P. Nicholson, Charles A. Richardson and L. L. Lomax, the park commissioners, conclude their report by referring to the proposition to establish a national roadway from Washington, D. C., to the park, to be known as "Lincoln Memorial Way," suggesting that a prospect of additional access and interest is thereby opened which will probably materialize in the future.

During the fiscal year a contract was signed to deliver markers to be made of South Carolina granite to be erected to the divisions of the army of North Virginia and to the Army of the Potomac on the Gettysburg field. These have been erected, except the one to Kilpatrick's cavalry division. Bronze tablets for the Confederate markers have been mounted upon the granite, which is seven feet high, fifty inches wide and twenty-four inches thick; also a plate of bronze with the letters "C. S. A." The inscriptions for the Union tablets have not been cast, but the corps badge of bronze has been placed on each.

ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP REACHES BERLIN

Welcomed by Cheering Thousands and Greeted by Emperor.

WRIGHT MEETS THE KAISER

Roofs of Houses Over Which the Balloon Passed Were Swarmed With Cheering People—In Berlin Church Bells Rang and the Military Band Played.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The airship Zeppelin II, with Count Zeppelin at the helm, arrived safely at Berlin Sunday afternoon. The voyage from Friedrichshafen was marked by an accident to the airship which caused a considerable delay at Bitterfeld. At that point Count Zeppelin met the craft and was greeted by the crown prince, representing the emperor. The emperor himself witnessed the arrival of the airship here.

Two monarchs of the air, Count Zeppelin and Orville Wright, foremost exponents of distinct systems of aerial navigation, met at Berlin for the first time. They were introduced by the monarch of the German empire.

Swarms of People on Roofs.
The airship left Bitterfeld early Sunday morning, with the count, his nephew, Engineer Duerr, who had navigated her from Friedrichshafen, and eight others aboard. Wittenberg and Juterberg were passed amid the cheering of thousands. Potsdam, the city of palaces, was thronged with crowds to witness the flight of the airship. The roofs of houses, church towers, and the open spaces in the outskirts of the city swarmed with people, who cheered and waved flags and handkerchiefs as the vessel passed over. Templehof field was reached just after the conclusion of the church services. The emperor and empress arrived at the special tribune constructed in the center of the immense field just as the bows of the airship appeared over the edge of the parade grounds. The hundreds of thousands who gathered there sighted the craft at the same moment, and a roar of cheering went up. "Zeppelin," "Zeppelin" was heard from every throat. The church bells rang out in merry peals and the military band played the national anthem.

Performed Intricate Evolutions.
Zeppelin, who had descended to a low altitude, carried out a series of intricate evolutions gracefully in full view of the people. Then the balloon's nose was turned toward the city, over which it circled for two hours in all directions, executing every manner of manoeuvre, and ascending and descending, sometimes coming so close to earth that the spectators could see the faces of the men in the gondola.

The emperor and empress, accompanied by the princes and princesses, went to Tegau to await the arrival of the count. The emperor, who had specially sent for Professor Hergesell, government commissioner on airships, to invite Orville Wright and his sister to join the party, gave them a most hearty welcome. Then the balloon came slowly over the field, the motors stopped and the vessel glided to the ground, the band played, and the emperor saluted as Count Zeppelin stepped forward. His majesty then advanced and shook hands heartily. He presented Mr. Wright to the count, and the American aeroplane pilot and Count Zeppelin exchanged congratulations. The emperor took off his helmet and called for three cheers for Zeppelin.

The other two pilots who represented France, Latham and Lefebvre, finished respectively in 17 minutes 32 seconds and 20 minutes 47.3 seconds.

Have Frost Every Month in the Year.
Penfield, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Since it is certain that up here on the mountain tops there will be frost in Sept., 1909 will go upon record in this region as a year in which there was frost in every month of the twelve. On three nights of July frost fell and on one night in August, and yet the damage to crops was unapproachable.

$100 FOUND IN DEAD LETTER

Contained No Message as to Identity of Sender.

Washington, Aug. 30.—One of the clerks engaged in opening unclaimed letters and parcels in the dead letter division of the postoffice department ran across a letter which contained $100 in bills, encased in two pieces of pasteboard. The letter contained no writing or message of any kind that might lead to the identity of the sender.

The letter was mailed in Boston and addressed to a party in New York. Receipts of this character average about $60,000 per annum, about 68 per cent of which is restored to the owners, leaving 32 per cent to be conveyed into the United States treasury, if not claimed within four years.

FIND GROUP OF SKELETONS

Old English Copper Coins Among Hastily Buried Bones.

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 30.—Fifteen skeletons, lying together in such a position as to indicate hasty burial, and three English copper coins bearing the date 1729 were found during the excavating for the United States Medical School hospital, near the banks of the Potomac river.

ASSAILANT OF ROOSEVELT VELT POLICIES QUITS

Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor Resigns.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Ormsby McHarg, assistant secretary of commerce and labor, resigned his job less than twenty-four hours after he had delivered a vicious attack on President Roosevelt, the policies of the former president, and Chief Forester Pinchot.

The controversy between Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and Mr. Pinchot thus reaches an acute stage. It is believed that President Taft will now be compelled to take drastic action towards ending the scandals growing out of the grabbing of lands and water power and the efforts of corporations to overturn the Roosevelt policy of conservation of public resources.

The resignation of McHarg is construed here to mean that President Taft does not intend to turn over his administration to the great "Interests." McHarg was to have retired Oct. 1, but evidently the president was desirous of placing his stamp of disapproval upon McHarg's uncalled for and unprecedented attack upon former President Roosevelt and his progressive policies.

There was no excuse for McHarg's outburst. He violated all the recognized official courtesy by injecting himself into the controversy between Secretary Ballinger and Chief Forester Pinchot.

Ballinger Hurries to Washington.

Seattle, Aug. 30.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger hurriedly left for Washington. "Departmental affairs," he said, "have made it necessary for me to change my plans and go at once to Washington."

SWEEP THE FAVORITE

Keene's Entry Backed to Win the Futurity of Two-Year-Olds.

New York, Aug. 30.—The rich Futurity, the classic race between two-year-olds nominated before they are foaled, was run this afternoon at Sheepshead bay. Uncertainty envelops the outcome of this struggle of sixteen young bloods of the American turf for the richest purse that has been hung this season, about $27,000. James R. Keene, whose stable has always made its best efforts to win the Futurity, has two representatives entered, Sweep, a brown colt by Ben Brush-Pink Domino and Grasmere, a chestnut colt by Meddler-Rohta II. Sweep appears to be a slight favorite.

THROWN TO DEATH BY HORSE

Frightened Animal Tossed Man Beneath Wheels of Heavy Automobile.

Kittanning, Pa., Aug. 30.—While holding a "rightened horse until an automobile passed, Michael Karl, aged fifty years, was thrown into the road when the horse tossed its head and crushed him to death beneath the wheels of the heavy touring car.

After running over Karl, the chauffeur of the machine, seeing that the frightened horse had not run off, sped away. The number of the automobile was not taken by Karl's companion.

Gave Her Five Children Poison.
St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 30.—In a fit of insanity, Mrs. Carrie Sanders, aged forty-one, gave five of her six children morphine, and while trying to give the poison to the sixth she was detected by a neighbor and confessed what she had done. Weldon, aged five years, is dead, but physicians say they will save the lives of the other children. The mother also took poison and cut her throat, after making her confession, but is expected to recover.

Child Scared by Cop Drops Dead.
Catskill, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Frightened at the threat of a policeman to "take him along" for playing in a park fountain here, Robert Sims, seven years old, ran terror-stricken to his home and dropped dead at his mother's feet.

A WOMAN DUELIST.

By HAROLD OTIS.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

Serane, fencing master at Paris, when dueling was not only more common but more serious than now, prepared the way for the killing of many men by teaching his art to the Parisians. It was generally understood that a pupil of Serane was sure to kill his man. If his lessons were really so valuable it must have been partly owing to a special confidence given the pupil and a corresponding loss of nerve on the part of the opponent. At any rate, those whom Serane had taught usually had little trouble in settling their disputes without recourse to the foil.

One evening Serane was sauntering down the boulevard and on reaching the opera concluded to go in and attend the performance. One of the slingers on the stage was a woman named Maupin. Though she was not singing an important part, Serane's gaze was constantly fixed upon her. Why one woman's personnel will appeal to one man when another woman is the chief attraction for other men is an insoluble problem. We only know that the fact exists. In Maupin, Serane saw that which appealed to him strongly. At the close of the performance he sent his card to her and received an invitation to call upon her behind the scenes.

"M. Serane," she said as soon as he appeared, "I deem myself fortunate in your desiring to make my acquaintance. You are well known to me by reputation as a splendid teacher of fencing, and I wish you to give me lessons."

Serane found the singer as fascinating in the greenroom as on the stage. She was young, fairly good looking, and about her was a certain abandon which when not too pronounced is attractive to men. Serane felt desperately in love with her, and she permitted him to love her in order that she might get out of him all the skill in fencing he was capable of imparting. She was an apt pupil and, taught by a lover, became the most skillful fencer that had ever been turned out from his academy.

No sooner had Maupin acquired the art than she began to attract attention as a duelist. At first her affairs with the sword leaked out as mere rumors. One report was that a young nobleman who had been devoted to her had fallen by her hand; that, disguised in men's apparel, she had insulted him and killed him without his knowing of her identity. Again it was rumored that she had fought and killed another woman. That she was applying her skill in affairs of this kind there was no doubt, though some that were attributed to her had no foundation in fact.

She liked to have Serane with her both on account of his devotion and because his presence gave her additional eclat as a swordswoman. But he came to understand that she craved blood or the excitement of taking it, and he endeavored to dissuade her from her course.

One night Serane and Maupin were dancing at a students' ball in the Latin quarter when Maupin jostled the belle of the evening, and upon the girl's looking at her resentfully Maupin was rude to her. The insulted girl was dancing with an intimate friend of Serane, Gustav Grammont. Grammont, supported by two other men, ordered Maupin to leave the room. She said that she would do so provided they would go with her. They did so, and before morning she had killed them all.

Serane in this affair refused to support Maupin. Indeed, she was obliged to call on another man to act as her second. The day after she had killed Grammont and the others Serane received a note from her accusing him of cowardice in having deserted her in the hour of need and challenging him to mortal combat. Stung to the quick by her ingratitude, he sent a hasty reply accepting the challenge.

The man who had been a lover and had taught the object of his love to kill people, filled with a mad remorse, resolved to kill her, thus punishing her and stopping her career of bloodshed. They met in his academy, the doors of which had been bolted and the windows screened. Maupin stepped out on to the floor with as much composure as a mother would administer food to a babe. She looked at Serane with a stony stare and said:

"Serane's pupils always kill their opponents."

There can be no doubt but the woman said this to fill her antagonist with a superstitious dread that would take away his nerve. If it had any such effect, Serane gave no evidence of it. A revulsion of feeling had come over him. Had this not occurred, had he opposed Maupin as a lover, as she had presumed he would, there would have been no chance for him. As it was it was a fair fight between them.

But with Serane in full possession of his faculties there could not be a fair fight between them. As soon as Maupin saw that she had lost her power over him she knew that, if he chose, her punishment had come. The moment they crossed swords she saw in Serane's eyes not only a determination to kill her if he could, but a perfect confidence of being able to do so.

Singularly enough, this woman who had conquered men with men's weapons no sooner discovered that her womanly influence over the man who had furnished her with her power had ceased than every particle of her confidence deserted her. She gave her opponent a mute look of appeal. He answered it with a sword thrust to the heart.

BIG MINE CAVE-IN AT SCRANTON

Property Worth Fully $200,000 Destroyed.

TWO CITY BLOCKS SINK

A School House and Many Dwellings and Stores Completely Ruined and the Land Made Unmarketable Forever.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 30.—Fully $200,000 damage was done to west Scranton property by a mine cave-in, the worst the city has ever experienced. Abandoned workings of the old "Cork and bottle" colliery of the Fairlawn Coal company, which ceased operations twenty years ago, gave away under a side hill, and an area equal to two city blocks sunk anywhere from two to eight feet, throwing houses from their foundations, cracking walls and otherwise damaging buildings.

No. 16 public school, a $75,000 brick structure, was so badly damaged that it will have to be torn down. The other properties damaged are mostly frame residences with a few small store buildings.

One of the biggest items of loss is the land which, on account of being on a steep hillside, is probably made forever unmarketable. The disturbance is estimated to be about 130 feet below the surface. Fissures extending to the surface and three feet across at the top show themselves in a number of places.

One of the O'Connor properties, right on the brow of the hill, a new three-story tenement house, slid down the declivity six or seven feet, and is threatening to topple with any further settling.

Gas and water pipes were broken in all sections of the disturbed area, and the police are keeping people from entering upon it, for fear of a lighted match starting a conflagration.

Rats by the thousand ran through the fissures and scamped over the streets. Whisks of hay and straw that have lain in the old workings for twenty years were blown through an unsealed opening on the river bank by the force of the compression of air resulting from the settling.

CONCILIATION BOARD REPORTS GOOD WORK

Only Three Grievances Go to Umpires in Three Years.

New York, Aug. 30.—The anthracite conciliation board has issued a report covering the last three years of its work in settling differences between mine workers and operators. It shows that only twenty-three grievances were presented to the mediators between April 1, 1906, and April 1, last, as compared with 150 grievances in the three years immediately preceding 1906.

Improvements in the relations between the mine workers and their employers may be measured by the brevity of the report. The conciliation board was created by the strike commission of 1902. It consists of three representatives of the mine workers and three representatives of the operators. When these six are unable to agree the case is referred to an umpire appointed by a federal judge of the third circuit. In the last three years only three grievances have been referred to umpires.

GIRL KILLED BY BULL

Father Found Her Lying in a Field Terribly Injured.

McConnellsburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—Allura Daniels, aged thirteen years, the daughter of a farmer living four miles from here, was fatally gored and trampled by a young bull in her father's pasture. She had attempted to drive home the cows in her father's absence. He found her lying in the field, terribly injured. She died shortly after her removal to her home.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS

551 Killed and 5427 Injured in Penna. During First Six Months of Year.
Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—The state railroad commission has compiled statistics of the railroad accidents in Pennsylvania during the six months ending June 30 last. There were in all 551 fatal and 5427 non-fatal accidents. Of the fatalities, 472 were on steam railroads and 79 on electric roads. There were 3697 persons injured on the steam roads and 1748 on the trolley roads.

Railway Mail Clerk Trapped.
Pittsburg, Aug. 30.—Frank Magown, of Newark, N. J., for many years one of the most trusted and responsible railway clerks operating between New York and Pittsburg, was arrested by postal inspectors, charged with stealing letters. He was trapped by means of a decoy letter.

MAIL CARRIERS MEET TODAY

Important Questions to Be Discussed at St. Paul Convention.
St. Paul, Aug. 30.—The biennial convention of the National Letter Carriers' association began today. Prominent among the matters to be discussed will be the building of a tuberculosis hospital for members of the association. The age limit for retirement and the question of a pension for retired mail carriers will be other important issues before the convention.

The association will try to make arrangements with the postoffice department at the coming convention whereby each employee will receive thirty days vacation each year. Postmaster General Hitchcock and Governor Johnson will speak.

TRAIN KILLS GIRL

Man Fatally Injured on Reading Tracks Near Pottstown.

Pottstown, Pa., Aug. 30.—Margaret Cook, aged eighteen years, was instantly killed, and John C. Mountz, aged twenty-six years, was probably fatally injured by being struck by a train on the Philadelphia & Reading railway at Linfield near here. They alighted from a train at Linfield, and were walking down the tracks when in trying to avoid one train, they stepped in front of one going in the opposite direction. The engine ran over the girl and tossed Mountz twenty feet, fracturing his skull and probably injuring him internally.

EX-GOVERNOR TAYLOR RETURNS TO KENTUCKY

First Visit Since the Murder of Governor Goebel.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 30.—Kentucky has a visitor who for nine years was an exile from his native state because of his alleged connection with the assassination of Governor William Goebel. Former Governor William S. Taylor, who now lives in Indianapolis, and who was pardoned three months ago by Governor Willson of all charges against him growing out of Goebel's murder, is in Louisville.

This is Taylor's first visit to Kentucky since he fled from the state in 1899, soon after Goebel was shot. He is in good health, and his appearance is good. He says he will never return to Kentucky to live, as the state has brought him too much sorrow, his wife and daughter having died of broken hearts as a result of the accusations against him.

Taylor will probably visit his old home in the Whitley county mountains before returning to Indianapolis. If he does, a public reception will be tendered him by his former townpeople.

GIVES 10,000 POUNDS MILK

Cow's Nine Months' Output Equals 500 Pounds of Butter.

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 30.—H. J. Heim, of Cogan station, has a thoroughbred Holstein cow that has given 10,000 pounds of milk in nine months. She weighs 1350 pounds, and her nine-month-old calf weighs 600.

Her milk is 4 per cent butter fat, which in the nine months would have made approximately 500 pounds of butter. It costs no more to keep her than an ordinary "scrub" cow, and the returns are much larger.

Pour Gasoline on Fire; Killed.
Yardley, Pa., Aug. 30.—Mrs. William Tigard died as the result of burns received at her home at Morrisville when an explosion followed the pouring of gasoline, supposed to have been kerosene oil, on the kitchen fire. Mrs. Tigard was a mass of flame in an instant, and was burned from head to foot. She was taken to Mercer hospital, but was beyond relief. The Tigard house was consumed, only a few articles being saved.

1200 PERISH IN MEXICAN FLOOD

Deluge of Rain Sends River Over Monterey.

DAMAGE IS $12,000,000

The Flood Swept Everything Before It, and Hardly a Vestige Is Left of the 5000 Huts in Its Path—16,000 Persons Homeless—Many Families Swept to Death From Roofs of Their Homes.

Monterey, Mex., Aug. 30.—Twelve hundred persons drowned, 15,000 homeless and property damaged to the extent of $12,000,000 is the result of a flood which struck this city. Over four hundred bodies have been recovered.

The flood waters of the Santa Catarina river continues on their rapid course, and to add to the horror of the situation rain commenced to fall and caused untold suffering to the thousands of homeless persons who had congregated on the various plazas.

The destructive flood, due to the continued fall of rain for the past ninety-six hours, swept everything before it, and hardly a vestige is left of what was a few days ago a conglomeration of small huts swarming with families belonging to the poorer classes. The number of dead, which cannot be accurately estimated, for days, is placed at 1200.

Many Families Swept to Death.

Many families were swept to death with hardly a chance for their lives. With the onrush of the waters, pandemonium reigned, and as the victims were swept from their homes, on the tops of which many had sought shelter, never anticipating that the water would reach an unprecedented height, pitiful appeals for assistance could be heard by those on higher ground, but aid of any kind was impossible. The scene was indescribable. All through the flooded district groups could be seen huddled on the tops of two-story buildings, entirely surrounded by a tumultuous, seething mass of water. One by one, these houses disappeared with their human freight.

Already many bodies have been recovered, but it is impossible to state the exact number. A semi-reliable authority says the police records show that 400 bodies had been recovered. Scores of other bodies are believed to be still lodged at various points along the stream, and it may be weeks before they are recovered.

Pitiful Scenes.

Pitiful scenes are reported among the women and children. Many women have been separated from their husbands; mothers from their children, without knowledge of the whereabouts of one another.

It is thought that the damage will be far in excess of first estimates. Monterey smelter, one of the largest in Mexico, suffered great loss from the deluge of rain. This loss is variously estimated from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

The Monterey steel plant, the only plant of its kind in the republic, and which cost originally $10,000,000 to construct, is reported to have been damaged to the extent of from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The electric light and street railway system of Monterey was damaged to the extent of approximately $1,000,000.

This damage, together with the loss resulting from annihilation of approximately 5000 adobe huts and some structures of more pretentious appearance, will bring the financial loss up to approximately $12,000,000.

Little effort to recover the bodies of the drowned has yet been made, the chief thing done under the chaotic conditions prevailing being providing of shelter and food for the living.

STOLE GIRL BATHERS' SKIRTS

Wretch Drives Fair Swimmers to Sad Expedients.

Chester, Pa., Aug. 30.—Rita and Stella Campbell and Elsie Birney, pretty upland girls, were enjoying a bath in the borough swimming pool, when an unknown miscreant stole their skirts and shoes.

One of the girls was forced to wrap towels about her to make her way home. The thief had entered the clothing room through the window and helped himself to the girls' wearing apparel.

Motorcyclist Killed.

Westville, N. J., Aug. 30.—James Hewitt, twenty-three years old, of Woodbine, was crushed to death by a farmer's wagon, into which he crashed while riding a motorcycle on his way to Woodbury.

Robbed of His Bank Roll.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 30.—Drawing $555 from the bank to pay employees, Contractor David Watson was "touched" for it by one of three strangers, who rode on an elevator with him in an office building.

Governor Johnson Not Rich.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—"I am not sick, and have had no operation for appendicitis nor any disease performed, nor do I intend to have any," said Governor John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, who arrived here from a lecturing tour.

G. W. Weaver & Son THE LEADERS

THE TAILORED SUITS MORE POPULAR THAN EVER

Do you ever wonder who settles the styles? Your dress-maker depends on the fashion plates. The up-to-date Suit, Dress and Waist Manufacturer—"Wooltex" and others) does it differently. They have their representative in Paris, and other fashion marts, who goes everywhere that fashionable dressed people go. She writes Fashion letters, with sketches, to her home employers every week. Each season she sends home a dozen or so of the handsomest and most practicable models she can buy. The home designers study these models (many of which are entirely taken apart) sketches and letters, one gets a hint here, another there, then they set to work in keen competition each trying to outdo the other. All these models are then submitted to a Style Committee. Perhaps only a few will be chosen from a score or more, while the committee will suggest a change in some little detail here or there. The few chosen models often represent an expenditure of several hundred dollars, and yet many of them may be reproduced and sold for twenty or thirty dollars.

The writer of this Ad recently had the privilege of going through the best of the Suit and Coat factories of Cleveland, Ohio, where light, air and proper sanitary conditions prevail. He saw how the garments were drafted, cut, tailored etc., saw all through the different stages of the making. He was introduced to the designers, had a conversation with the style committee and with the head of the advertising department, in fact, looked into the details from office to packing room. He also learned WHY there is a seeming difference in price, not seen at first glance, in suits from factories less careful of a good name than those visited. Learned why a rightly tailored suit wears longer, is more dressy and sometimes costs a little more than the poorly tailored garment. We hope for success along the lines of the best possible for the price.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

POULTRY TRAP NESTS.

Easily Constructed and Warranted to Give Good Satisfaction.

The illustration marked A represents a trap nest constructed by students in the poultry course at the Pennsylvania State college. It is made out of an orange box.

All that is required to make these trap nests are a frame and tilt, as shown in the figure. The tilt is balanced. On the hen entering the nest at the rear of box her back touches the tilt, which drops forward and confines her is released. This trap nest gives good satisfaction and can be made very cheaply. "Ideal" trap nests shown in figure marked B, have also been used and found quite satisfactory. They have the advantage of occupying small space.

When one is anxious to build up a certain strain of birds, either for egg production, special fancy or exhibition stock, the trap nest, if looked after, will show which hens lay and which hens lay certain eggs, thus enabling the breeder to know exactly what he is doing. They require considerable time in the way of keeping records and releasing the hens after laying.

Each hen has her own individuality. Certain hens lay eggs that are nearly always hatchable. Some hens lay well. Their eggs are nearly always fertile, but will not hatch either under hens or in incubators. The chicks will develop to a certain size, often fully formed, but die in the shell. A few hens lay eggs that are seldom fertile. In selecting birds one has several objects. The saying is often heard that "the hen that lays is the hen that pays." The majority of those in the business consider egg production the best end of the business. It is often the surest. There is much less risk attached to it. Then if the production can be increased from five to ten eggs a hen per year you are doing a good business. The average hen does not produce over eighty eggs a year. At the Maine station, where the trap nest system has been in use some years, the record last year was between 135 to 140 eggs per hen, which shows a considerable gain over previous years.

Where limbs exceeding an inch in diameter are cut from the orchard trees the wound should be painted over with white lead and oil, colored with lampblack if desired, which will keep the wood from checking and becoming a source of infection for the rot fungus.

MY MARY ANNER'S PIANNER.

When the days seem sorter dreary
An' of work I'm gittin' weary
An' I'm feelin' sorter sourlike an' sad,
When the hull world seems opposin'
An' all human love seems frozen
An' the hull creation seems a-goin' to the bad.

Then's the time my Mary Anner
Jist tunes up her mouth pianner
An' she sings an' trills like angels up above.
Then I'm lifted out of sadness
To a world where all is gladness
An' the earth gits bright an' full of joy an' love.

When the devil comes a-savin':
"Come along an' do some piannin'.
You'll be winnin' cash to beat the very band.
Come an' take some ole rye whisky.
It will make you young an' frisky.
How kin you resist highballs that are so grand?"

Then's the time, thank God, my Mary,
Like an angel or some fairy,
Starts her hymn that wins me from the snare.
An' I turn an' lick the devil.
An' I keep my head jist level.
An' I try to live a life that's on the square.

Let's have more like Mary Anner.
With her love an' mouth pianner.
An' this world will git all holy light an' love.
Then when everything is ended
This ole world will jist git blended
Into that bright, pure an' happy world above.

THAT WHITE BUGABOO.

The government microbe experts certainly make a bugaboo out of their so called "deadly white diarrhea" scourge. They surely exhaust theories and printer's ink with no result.

This trouble among chicks is simply the result of sins of commission and omission. If you have this ailment among your birds you are to blame and not the much abused microbes.

Many of our chicks died with this disease in our early experience in the poultry business, but now we don't see one case to the hundred, and we hereby give you the principal reasons:

Our White Wyandotte breeders bubble over with vigor and give us strong, plump, livable chicks.

We use no cheap, claptrap hatching and brooding machines, apply lots of moisture and aren't afraid to cool eggs.

We never inbreed, mate old stock generally, and one side of the pen must at least be two years old.

Hatching eggs are carefully selected, kept in a cool place, are never over ten days old when set, are regularly turned by rolling with the hand, chicks aren't helped from the shell, and puny, weak, deformed chicks get a quick quietus.

We aren't afraid to open the incubator door during the hatch and don't "mollycoddle" the chicks.

We take them from the incubator quick as possible and sleep them in baskets and feed them in boxes for a few days, so when they go to the brooder they know how to eat, are hardened to the air and can go right into the scratch room to exercise for their food.

We get our chicks out on the ground as soon as they get their legs and know their brooder. This prevents leg weakness. Our brooder is colony style, with drumless hover, top heat and is bedded with loamy sand kept sanitary and well ventilated, the front door being open for air soon after the chicks are in, weather permitting. We start brooders at 90 degrees, which includes heat furnished by chicks, and gradually taper down according to need of chicks, always avoiding extreme either way, as an overheated chick gets bowel trouble as quickly as one that is chilled.

On a cool night we warm up hover to make it more inviting. On a chilly, windy day we heat up when chicks are out, even if the heat has been shut off, unless chicks are too large.

We dry off the chicks if caught in storm and warm the brooder during steady rains to prevent dampness and try to keep our birds from getting wet, for that means diarrhea unless they are well grown and feathered and also causes rashes.

We feed only dry, sweet, ground grain, starting them generally on a good chick food, cracking our own wheat and white corn and giving just enough to keep them a little hungry. They also have before them sharp hard grit, charcoal, good, sweet beef scrap and pure water, and we never change feed suddenly. Last, but not least, we knock the lice. Our chicks neither have white diarrhea, gapes nor leg weakness. Try our plan and be convinced.

DON'TS.

Don't let the poultry house be dark and gloomy when whitewash will make it white and light.

Don't let turkeys, ducks and hens run together. They do better when all of one feather.

Don't kick the horse if he tramps a hen in his stall. That's no place for a hen at all.

SELECTING A STALLION.

The Good Points of an Animal That Should Be Looked For.

"No foot, no horse," is a maxim too often forgotten. As the foundation of every structure is its most important part and must first be provided, so should the foot of a horse be the first thing about him inspected. If the foot be flat, shelly, weak or defective in any other way the inspection may cease regardless of what may be above it, for he will be like a house built upon the sand, says a writer in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago.

The feet being good, inspect the pasterns, which should be neither too upright nor too slanting. If straight, without any inclination, there will be too much concussion, while the other extreme means weakness. The ankle joints should be large and smooth, the cannon bone broad, clean and flat, with the tendons like whipcord and whalebone, not meaty and round. The knees looked at from in front should be broad, clean and free from scars, which betoken a stumbler. The breast should be full and of good width. Narrowness betokens a weak constitution as well as liability to interfere.

A FINE HEAD AND NECK.

The hocks should also be broad and clean, without any fullness, indicative of curb or spavin. The muscular development from shoulder to knee and from hip to hock varies in the roadster and draft horse. The roadster's muscles should be long, the drafter's thick and heavy. Now step to the head and note that the eyes are not too close together, show brown at the edges, are of good size, are not milky and have a kindly look. The ears should not be clumpy and should not be lepped or dull in action.

The face should not be dishd, and while a Roman nose is not handsome, it indicates power and generally good temper. As a whole, the head should be masculine, not meaty, but of fair size. An effeminate head is not to be desired in a stallion. The throatle should be clean and the neck strong, well crested and of medium length, fitting into shoulders of shape to take a collar. The girth should be large, the barrel round, ribs close up to the hips, coupling well forward and strong; hip of good length and not like a shed roof, tail well set on and carried high.

See the horse move. Know that he is sound of wind. Scan him closely and know that he is sound of limb. With all these questions determined, consider that a good horse is of a good color and that a grade stallion should never be used. He may be a grand individual, which proves the potency of his pure bred sire, but does not prove that he will transmit such qualities. His scrub ancestry is just as likely to show in his progeny as any other.

Bloat in Cattle.

Writing of bloat in cattle, William H. Underwood says: Where the slightest danger is apprehended it is always well to keep an eye on cattle that have been turned on to clover pastures. As to remedies, there is but one sure one after the animal shows distress, and that is the use of the trocar and cannula. The trocar is simply a sharp pointed awl and the cannula a little thimble or sheath, open at both ends, which is put on the end of the awl. This is driven in with the awl and remains when the trocar is removed, allowing the gas to escape. After the animal is relieved this can be removed. Every farmer should have this little tool ready when wanted. If, however, it is not available, the incision can be made with a clean knife, putting in a goose or turkey quill with both ends open and holding it there till the gas escapes.

The place to insert the trocar or make the incision on the cow's left side in the center of the depression between the last rib and the hip bone or between the last rib, the spine and the large protruding bone. This simply punctures the rumen, or paunch, and allows the gas to escape. After this the animal should be given a dose of physic. Epsom salts are probably the best.

Much in the Feed.

The meat of all animals is affected by the food they eat. For instance, the ducks that live on fish have a fishy flavor. The flesh has a disagreeable taste when fowls are fed on onions. When swine are fed on beech-nuts the bacon from the pigs has the finest flavor, while hogs allowed to feed on stinking, filthy slops and on dead animals furnish food unfit for human beings. There is no excuse for not feeding the soundest, cleanest, freshest food and giving fresh and pure water. There is much in the feed.

Selecting Young Breeders.

Select young sows pigs for breeders before they are two months old. Young clover and grass with skim milk is always proper food for pigs selected for breeders.

THE REBEL'S RUSE.

By EUNICE WINSOR.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

During the American Revolution a regiment of Continentals were placed in Westchester county to "observe" the British then occupying New York. Denton Woodworth, a bitter Tory, living near the patriot force, discovered that his daughter Evelyn and one of the captains, Elderkin, had fallen in love with each other. Woodworth was so horrified at his daughter marrying a rebel that he decided to leave his place in Westchester county and take his family to New York city. The evening before their departure Evelyn and Elderkin met clandestinely in a wood near the house, then and there plighted their troth and before parting arranged a method of correspondence. The next day the Woodworth family crossed the Harlem river, were admitted within the British lines and occupied their town house near what was then and is now Bowling Green. It was not long after their settlement in their new quarters that Evelyn received a letter from an intimate friend of hers, living near her home in Westchester county. It had been sent in with a number of others under a flag of truce. Her father, thinking that the missive might contain some word from Elderkin, opened and read it before giving it to his daughter. It was written in a woman's hand and contained no mention whatever of the rebel captain.

Amelia Woodworth, a sister of the head of the family, was as bitter a Tory as her brother and as deeply interested in breaking up the love affair between her niece and the young rebel captain. The evening of the reception of the letter from beyond the lines, when Evelyn was in bed, Aunt Amelia concluded to do a little detective work. Going into Evelyn's room, she asked her if she would let her read the letter. Evelyn's heart stood still; but, outwardly retaining her equanimity, she told her aunt where to find it, and the old lady sat down by a candle to read it. After trying for a long while to discover some code in it she fell asleep. When she awoke the candle had burned down to the socket, the letter lay near the flame scorched, and across its face was the fragment of a sentence that had evidently been written in green ink—"That old cat, your Aunt Am—"

Indignation struggled with joy at the discovery for a time; then the old lady extinguished the candle and stole away with the letter. Evelyn was awake and saw what she did, but did not dare oppose her. Mr. Woodworth had gone out to France's tavern for a tippie and to learn if there was any news of the military situation. His sister waited patiently till he returned, then showed him the letter. To her surprise the green letters had disappeared.

Now, the old man loved his daughter, but did not get on with his sister. He looked the letter over carefully, then told Miss Woodworth that she might be in better business than in spying—that she had in her mind a belief that she would make a discovery and, suddenly awakening, had seen the writing only through her distorted imagination. Then he ordered her to take the letter back to Evelyn's room.

Evelyn knew that something had happened, but what she was not sure, since her aunt kept her own counsel. Evelyn dare not destroy the letter for fear of making matters worse. She left it in her writing desk, and a few days later, when the rain was pouring down and the air laden with moisture, the old woman, rummaging in the desk, came upon another surprise. There was the letter, and this time it was covered with pink letters. Indeed, she read a love letter written across the other from Captain Elderkin to her niece, in which he warned Evelyn to beware of "that old cat, your Aunt Amelia."

Taking the letter into her own room, she sat down before a warm fire on the hearth, laying it on a table beside her. She was rejoicing at the prospect of convincing her brother that she had been right after all. Then it occurred to her to copy the pink words lest they fade like the green ones. Turning to the letter, what was her surprise to find that they had already disappeared.

Defeated again, she replaced the letter where she had found it. Thinking to discover some means for bringing back the secret missive, she went there next day for it, but Evelyn had meanwhile concluded to burn it.

A month later another batch of letters was sent into the British lines and among them one from Evelyn from the same friend who had written her before. Unfortunately for the lovers, it fell into Miss Woodworth's hands. Meanwhile she had confided her secret to a friend, a professor in King's—the name was at that time changed to Columbia—college. The second letter she took to him. He heated it and moistened it with no effect. Then he tried the application of chemicals, and a solution of iodide of starch brought out another love letter, this time in blue.

Soon after this the British evacuated the city, and Captain Elderkin marched in with the patriots. Evelyn finally overcame her father's opposition and married her lover. Then the method of their correspondence was explained.

The first love letter was written with ink mixed with gum arabic and a chloride of cobalt, making pink letters, which disappeared when the ink dried and reappearing green under heat. It again disappeared under cold and became pink again when dampened. The second love letter was written in rice water, the ink of which, after being brought out, will disappear forever.
